

Women and The Reproduction of Labour Power in The Industrial City. A Case Study.
December 1980.

By Suzanne Mackenzie.

The Working Paper is part of Suzanne Mackenzie's early work on women and the 19th century Canadian city. It is a very slightly modified reprint of her MA research paper (U of Toronto 1978). It is a helpful addition to the FIGS archives and for anyone interested in the early history of feminist urban geography in Canada

We would like to thank Damaris Rose for providing these compressed copies of Suzanne Mackenzie's work, for posting to the FIGS webpage. We would also like to thank the University of Sussex Library (Legacy Collections team) for making this document available to us for sharing.

Copyright/takedown notice (suggested by the University of Sussex Library):

If you are the author, rights holder or are authorised to act on behalf of the author/rights holder and you are concerned that you have found material available on our website for which you have not given permission and which infringes your copyright, you have the right to request its removal.