FIELD TRIP/EXCURSION #1

Urban growth pressures and planning challenges in Ottawa's Greenbelt

Thursday 28 May 08:15-13:00

Guides: Sylvie Lalonde, Principal Regional Planner, National Capital Commission; Eva Katic, Senior Land Management Officer, National Capital Commission; Gary Martin (Carleton)

Meet at 08:15 in DT2017 (Dunton Tower, 20th floor)

The 1950 Plan for the National Capital first proposed the establishment of 20,000 hectares of a "green belt" around what was then a much smaller City of Ottawa. This Greenbelt was intended to limit urban growth around Ottawa, preserve the "scenic countryside" and to provide large open space for large institutions. Managed by the National Capital Commission (NCC) in accordance with the 1996 Greenbelt Master Plan, the Greenbelt remains a prominent landmark in the capital region, but one that faces increasing urban growth pressures. In this tour, participants will explore the urban growth pressures and related environmental planning challenges facing the Greenbelt and NCC planners as they embark on a 3-year review of the 1996 plan. The tour includes a background presentation by the NCC and an on-site tour of the eastern part of the Greenbelt. It begins with a view of the city from the 20th floor of the tallest building on the Carleton campus.

FIELD TRIP/EXCURSION #2 (Below-)Grounded Geopolitics

Friday 29 May 09:00-14:00 (includes session F26 on site at Diefenbunker and lunch)

Guide: Simon Dalby (Carleton)

Meet at 09:00 (sharp!) at the foot of Dunton Tower.

The "Diefenbunker" located west of Ottawa was once a secret government facility designed to protect the Federal Cabinet and key Government functionaries in the event of a nuclear war. Built in 1959-61 the facility is now a Cold War museum and a reminder to all visitors of a previous era of geopolitical fears, and state responses to perceived threats. A field trip to this facility will focus on the practical preparations taken during the Cold War to ensure a continuity of government in the event of the destruction of Ottawa, while simultaneously raising the questions of how such geopolitical matters are memorialised in another era. Session F26 will take place in the bunker's seminar room.
